THE GOOD NAME

2. Then all is well, and yet the best and happiest state is yet to come; for there remains for us a rest, a heavenly and eternal home. Here we must wrestle, suffer, die; yet courage! for the time 's at hand, when we shall reign with Christ on high in our true home and fatherland.

3. Then shall we go, a holy seed, our promised heritage to claim; while angels on our foreheads read a new name written – God's own name. That which by faith, and hope, and love, the inner man in life became, shall be made manifest above, perfect and glorious, yet the same.

4. Rejoice ye, therefore, that your name is written in the heaven above; that to such honours here ye came, is due to your Redeemer's love.
Who truly love, and hope, and trust, God in the book of life enrols, to take their station with the just, the perfected and ransomed souls.

Words: Carl Johann Philipp Spitta. Translation: Richard Massie. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Copyright © 2016 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/126/