SAVIOUR, THIS IS WHAT I ASK

- then thy yoke will eas y be.
 - 2. Sweet the service (else not so), when the servant loves his master.'Tis to thee, O Lord, I owe rescue from the great disaster, that which fell upon our race: mine was once a fearful case.

4. From this state, if not deceived, I may say that thou hast saved me. Bought with blood, by grace relieved from the power that once enslaved me; pleasant should thy service be: pleasant, Lord, to one like me.

- 3. Under guilt, and under curse, and the very slave of sin, what was there to make it worse? All was dark and dead within, still without, all goodly seemed, man approved, while God condemned.
- 5. Saviour, what I ask is this, make it so, and so it will be, else it will be as it is; what I have been, I shall still be. Lord, increase my love to thee, make me what I ought to be.
