HAVE WE KNOWN INDEED, AND TASTED

With a price all price exceeding,
has the Lord his people bought.
 Slaves he found them, little heeding;
his was grace, 'twas grace unsought.
'Twas the fruit of boundless love,
something far our thoughts above.

4. Precious is the blood that bought them, far beyond what words can tell; marvellous the love that sought them, this they know, they know full well.

Theirs it is to sing his praise, theirs to love his holy ways.

- 3. He has burst the chains that bound them: blessed is his people's lot; arms of mercy now surround them: his is love that changes not. They who by his grace are saved, never more shall be enslaved.
- 5. Theirs to live in expectation of a glorious day to come, when the God of their salvation will return to take them home.

 Theirs to see him as he is, and to live with him and his.
