DEPENDENCE ON GOD

- 2. No toil by day, nor sorrow from evening till the morrow, nor murm'ring aught avails: my goings I confide them to thee, my God, to guide them, to faith thy mercy never fails.
- 3. The path would I oppose it?
 My heavenly Father chose it
 and it will wisdom prove:
 thou takest, or thou givest, –
 the same thou ever livest, –
 and evermore thy name is love.
- 4. Pursuing thy direction,
 I'll trust in thy protection,
 amid surrounding foes;
 thy promise, always near me,
 with constant hope will cheer me,
 till thou the promised good disclose.
- 5. From sin's oppressive burden relieving me, thy pardon from wrath has set me free: leave not my soul forsaken, if now by sin o'ertaken, but in thy patience chasten me!

- 6. When night repose is lending, or sun, the skies ascending, brings back the toils of day: when ways of peril offer, or I the cross must suffer, thy word abides my spirit's stay.
- 7. Go with me! and wherever it be, I'll nothing waver, content, will forward go.
 No threatened ill alarms me, with strength thy presence arms me, and will conduct me safely through.
- 8. With all thy will complying, for living, or for dying, the whole to thee I leave: if thou today should call me to die 't will not appal me, I'll, undismayed, the call receive.
- 9. Be his, my spirit, wholly, and trust h i s wisdom solely, who has thy being blessed: whate'er on earth be given, thy Father rules in heaven, appointing what for thee is best.

Words: Paul Flemming. Translation: Henry Mills. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Copyright © 2020 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/1538/