

- 2. Arise! because the night of sin must flee before the light of day, God's glorious Gospel shining in, must chase the midnight gloom away: you cannot true disciples be if you still walk in vanity.
 Arise!
- 3. Arise! although the flesh be weak, the spirit willing is and true, and servants of the Master seek to follow where it guideth to.

 Beloved! oh, be wise indeed, and let the spirit ever lead.

 Arise!
- 4. Arise! because our Serpent-foe unwearied strives by day and night, remembers time is short below, and wrestles on with hellish might: then boldly grasp both sword and shield! Who slumbers on the battle-field?

 Arise!

- 5. Arise! before that hour unknown, the hour of death that comes ere long, and comes not to the weak alone, but to the mighty and the strong.

 Beloved! oft in spirit dwell upon the hour that none can tell.

 Arise!
- 6. Arise! that you prepared may stand before the coming of the Lord; the day of wrath draws nigh at hand, according to th' eternal Word.

 Ah! think, perhaps this day shall see the dawning of eternity!

 Arise!
- 7. Arise! it is the Master's will,
 no more his heavenly voice despise!
 Why linger with the dying still?
 He calls arouse you, and arise!
 No longer slight the Saviour's call,
 it sounds to you, to me, to all.
 Arise!

Words: Ludwig Andreas Gotter. Translation: Sarah Laurie Borthwick Findlater. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Copyright © 2020 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/1554/