THE SABBATH MORNING

- 2. Now God declares to thee his will, prepare thy heart, and hold thee still; as he will do his work in thee, keep hand and heart from all work free.
- 3. Today the Lord throws wide his door, and gives out bread to rich and poor, his precious word, his living bread; who tastes of this no death need dread.
- 4. Today the Sower goeth forth to sow his seed throughout the earth, which in the heart, where it takes hold, brings forth good fruit an hundred fold.
- 5. Today the faithful Shepherd leads his sheep and lambs to pleasant meads, where tender grass and herbage grow, and streams of living water flow.
- 6. The good Physician, whose rare skill can heal all kinds of human ill, today is ready to impart healing to every broken heart.
- 7. O happy day! O day of rest!
 O Sabbath which the Lord hath blessed!
 The merry church-bells seem to say:
 Come to the house of God today!

Words: Carl Johann Philipp Spitta. Translation: Richard Massie. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Copyright © 2010, 2016 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/251/