IT DOTH NOT YET APPEAR WHAT WE SHALL BE

2. The stars of heaven, how few and wan are all we see below, compared with what remain unseen beyond all vision now!

3. Who knows the untold brilliance there, the wealth, the beauty hid, like sparkle of a lustrous eye beneath its veiling lid!

4. So with the heaven of better stars, of which these but are signs; so with the stores of wisdom hid in everlasting mines.

5. For what we shall in that day be it doth not yet appear; but when we see him as he is, we shall his likeness wear.

Words: Horatius Bonar. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg.
Copyright © 2014 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/468/