CONSIDERHIM

- 2. The Son of God, who pity had on thee; who turned aside the smiting rod, and all alone the Garden trod, – forgotten shall he be?
- 3. The blessed Lord, who came to die for thee; whom Jew and Gentile then abhorred, while heavenly hosts his name adored, – forgotten can he be?
- 4. That Brother, Friend, who daily waits on thee; who every want doth comprehend with love divine that has no end, forgotten can he be?
- 5. O Patient One! thou speakest thus to me: "Oh strangest thing beneath the sun, that thou, for whom so much is done, shouldst oft forgetful be!"
- 6. My Lord, I know what truth thou say'st to me: forgive my sin, on me bestow such grace, as hence to all will show I do consider thee.
