

- 2. He's gone within the veil, for us that place he's won; in him we stand, a heavenly band, where he himself is gone.
- 3. There's all unsullied light; my heart lets in its rays, and heavenly light makes all things bright, seen in that blissful gaze.
- 4. Such here on earth I am, though I in weakness roam; my place on high, God's Self so nigh, his presence is my home.
- 5. My heart is filled with bliss heaven's own eternal joys; my soul at rest, of peace possessed, that world its strength employs.

- 6. Thus, in divine delight of love so richly known, God's works below with beauty glow; his hand, his grace, I own.
- 7. And stayed by joy divine, as hireling fills his day, through scenes of strife and desert lifeI tread in peace my way.
- 8. That way is upward still, where life and glory are; my rest's above, in perfect love the glory I shall share –
- 9. for ever with the Lord, for ever like him then – and see his face in that blessed place, my Father's house in heaven.

Words: John Nelson Darby. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Copyright © 2012 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/676/